

WIFE ESCAPES IN SALVATION GARB

Unrecognized, She Passed Her Husband at Gateway of Army's Refuge Home.

BACK IN HOME OF LUXURY

Girl Who Eloped With Language Teacher, Once Section Hand, Is Now Disillusioned.

"Dr." Ricardo Salvatore Cocito, whose wife of six months donned the garb of the Salvation Army to escape his watchfulness, and who later left the Salvation Army Refuge on Marine street and went to her home in Cincinnati, has followed her to that city with the purpose of inducing her to return.

Mrs. Cocito, who was Miss Leola Benedict, daughter of Judge G. W. Benedict, one of the most prominent attorneys of Cincinnati, is only 19. She eloped with Cocito, a teacher of languages, because her family forbade her to receive him at home.

Confident that she still loves him, Cocito declared to friends before his departure Tuesday night, "I will be back in a week with my wife. If I am alive."

Hardly had he started on his journey than a telegram came from Judge Benedict, directing the police to recover the effects of his daughter, which she left in her husband's possession when she made her hasty flight. Mrs. Cocito's relatives have announced that immediate steps will be taken to obtain a divorce, since she declares that she will never return to him.

Romantic Girl's Fond Illusion.

Cocito is 27, slender and of patrician appearance. He has dark eyes and hair, wears a Vandyke beard and a flowing mustache. With the grace and eloquence of the Latin race, and of a type to appeal to a romantic school girl, what wonder that convent-bred Leola Benedict, then just 18, fell under the sway of his voice and manners?

After finishing her course at the convent of the Franciscan Sisters, she determined to study modern languages. A friend recommended Cocito as an instructor in Italian. She became one of his pupils. From the first she was attracted to him. Cocito proved an ardent wooer. Two weeks had not passed before Salvatore told in words what his eyes had been telling from the first meeting—the tale of a burning love.

Her consent to marry him was won, but realizing that her family opposed the match Cocito induced her to agree to an elopement. Then they went to Chicago and the bride informed her relatives of the marriage.

Two months ago Cocito and bride came to St. Louis. The rented room at 208 E. 10th street, Cocito assumed the title of "doctor," and formed several classes in modern languages. Some of the pupils resided in the parlor of the lodging house. Others received tuition at their homes.

Pawnshops Kept
Starvation Afoot.

The language classes failed to bring in an income sufficient for the most need of the couple. Then the visits to the pawnshops began. Place by place the wife's jewelry was parted with, choice mementoes followed. Often there was not enough money to pay the check of the two to dine at the nearby restaurant.

Finally she determined to leave her husband, but as she was unable to do so it was necessary to find asylum until she could communicate with her family. She determined to seek temporary refuge at the Salvation Army Rescue Home until her father could forward money for her return.

Tuesday a week ago Cocito permitted her to go alone to the rescue home. She made no attempt to select her seat from the rescue home. She intended, instead of going to the restaurant she hastened to the Rescue Home, because her father's money would be kept a secret from her husband until her family was notified.

Passed Husband
Unrecognized.

When his wife did not return Cocito was wild with grief. He feared she had been abducted by her relatives or that she had taken her own life. He was unable to obtain any information from the rescue home.

The following Thursday he was told that his wife was at the Rescue Home. He endeavored to see her but she refused to receive him. He was about the place continually.

Saturday Mrs. Cocito received a draft to cover the expenses of the trip home. She also was given an urgent invitation to come. It was necessary to elude her husband, so she disguised herself in the Salvation Army bonnet and jacket. At dusk three ladies came out of the home, followed by three others, followed in turn by three more. Cocito waited at the door. The middle girl in the Salvation Army garb was his wife, but she passed him undetected.

She hastened to her father's home, boarded a train east and the next morning entered her father's handsome home at 525 East Fourth street, Cincinnati.

Charles Ginocchio, Italian consul at Cincinnati, pronounced Cocito an arrant impostor. He says that last November Cocito applied to him for aid in obtaining work. He was shabbily attired and penniless. He could not speak English, and said he had been in America but a small sum and got him a job on a railroad in Kentucky as section hand. Christmas he appeared and tried to borrow more money. He refused, as the first loan had not been repaid. Cocito then became a model in an art school.

Soon after Mr. Ginocchio saw Cocito walking on the street with a very pretty girl, who, he afterwards learned, was Miss Benedict.

He greatly desired to warn her against her companion, but was unable to learn her identity at the time. Cocito told the consul that she was one of his pupils. As Mrs. Cocito disappeared, Cocito was next heard from in Columbus, where he raised $200 on the pretext of waiting for a hospital in Italy. The Columbus chief of police wrote to the consul for Cocito's record, and the consul pronounced him a fraud.

With the money Cocito returned to Cincinnati, well dressed and seemingly prosperous. Consul Ginocchio notified the Columbus police, but they stated that the complainants had decided not to prosecute.

Not until the consul heard of the marriage of Miss Benedict to "Dr. Salvatore Cocito" did he ascertain that the pretty girl whose identity he had been seeking to learn was his daughter. He advised without right to a title.

Consul Ginocchio has placed in Mrs. Cocito's possession the history of her husband's past. He says that while Cocito was in Columbus he is known to have associated with a well-known anarchist leader and that he received anarchist papers from Italy.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—Division No. 2 of the supreme court today completed the call of its docket and adjourned to Nov. 24, when opinions will be rendered in cases submitted this term. This division has charge of the criminal cases, and it is probable that the Butler case may be in the list of cases decided then.

WOMAN CHARMER

Audience Applauds Victim's Screams and Frantic Struggles With Boa, Thinking It Part of Show.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—A young woman was squeezed to death by a boa constrictor at Voelklingen, Prussia, today, while giving a performance in a menagerie. The spectators thought at first that her screams and frantic struggles as the snake tightened its coils were part of the show and applauded and cheered "bravo" at the "realism" of her acting.

The attendants, however, saw the woman's danger, ran in, beat the snake and slashed it with knives.

The woman was dead when released.

ST. LOUIS BOY KILLED
IN A FOOTBALL GAME

John Withnell, St. Louis University's Little Quarterback, Succumbs to Injuries Received in Tuesday's Game Against Marion-Sims Dentals.

The first fatality to occur on a local football field this season had its climax early Thursday morning when John Withnell of 300 Meramec street, quarterback of the St. Louis University eleven, died after an operation performed at St. Anthony's Hospital.

The death is the fourth this season to occur on the football fields throughout the country.

Withnell's injury was sustained in practice Tuesday when, after a scrimmage against Marion-Sims' Dental team, he was found stricken upon the ground in a semi-conscious state.

In the melee he had been kicked in the spine and his neck severely wrenched. Dr. William Dillon and Coach Delaney rushed Withnell to a carriage, in which he was conveyed to the home of his father, W. W. Withnell.

His condition, while considered serious, was not thought critical until after an examination, when it was feared his spine was seriously injured.

Dr. Carson attended Withnell and the base of the spine was operated upon. The injury received by Withnell was entirely accidental. Dr. Dillon, who was present at the practice game and who was formerly a capable football player, said the accident was entirely unavoidable.

Withnell was in perfect condition at the time he sustained the injury. He was only 17 years old, however, and weighed but 125 pounds. His own team and that of the opposing aggregation were composed of men who outweighed him many pounds, some by almost seventy pounds. In the crush against the giants he was playing with, his frail build could not offer sufficient resistance and he was caught in the grapple.

The loss of Withnell is deeply felt at St. Louis University and many students called Wednesday to inquire after the injured player.

Withnell's death is a serious blow to the university team, and the shock may hurt the same here.

Mrs. Daisy Sethergill Wants Divorce From Roy, Who Has Been in the Philippines Five Years.

Distance does not lend enchantment in the opinion of Mrs. Daisy S. Sethergill, who has filed suit for divorce from Roy Sethergill in the circuit court, alleging abandonment.

Mrs. Sethergill, who is but 22 years old, states that her husband is in the Philippines, employed by the government, and that he has sent her no money since March 15, 1902, so she wants a legal separation.

She has been supporting herself as a stenographer, and is living with her mother, Mrs. Abbott Williams, at 172 Lafayette avenue.

When but 17 she married Sethergill. He was 30. He left for the Philippines shortly afterward.

Then he sent her transportation to join him and she quickly did so. Four years later, when she became homesick, he helped send her home to her mother for a visit. Since that time, she says, he has failed to contribute to her support.

"WHEN THE GRANDJURY HAVE FINISHED I WILL HAVE SOMETHING TO SAY"

—James L. Blair.

Attorney Is Able to Sit Up in Chair at His Home in Kirkwood, but Has Not Renewed His Application for Libel Warrant Against E. C. Brokmeyer.

FOLK TOOK UP CASE
THREE WEEKS AGO

George B. Webster, Subpoenaed as Witness Before Grandjury, Says He Made a Full Statement in Circuit Attorney's Office Oct. 1.

STATEMENT OF
MR. BLAIR TODAY.
I have no statement to make.
At my request the grandjury is investigating these rumors.
When they have finished their investigation I will have something to say.

JAMES BLAIR.

At his home, "Stancote," James L. Blair wrote this statement to the Post-Dispatch Thursday morning.

A young woman employed by the family as secretary said that Mr. Blair's condition of health was much improved and that he was sitting up in a chair. She said the physician had not called Thursday and that he would probably not be needed. All callers at the Blair home are denied admission to Mr. Blair's apartments. No personal friends called at the home Thursday morning.

The following persons have been summoned to appear before the grandjury today:

Chas. H. Huffis, president Third National Bank, and director Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

H. A. Forman, president Fourth National Bank.

Isaac H. Lionberger, attorney.

Arthur B. Shepleigh, attorney.

J. Brooks Johnson, capitalist and money lender.

Robt. L. McClara, attorney.

J. D. Simms, attorney.

A. L. Cunningham, publisher, has not yet been served.

George B. Webster, attorney.

Capt. Henry King, editor.

A summons was also issued for James T. Roberts, a former business associate of James L. Blair, but a deputy sheriff reported at noon that he had been unable to find Mr. Roberts.

Attorney George B. Webster said this morning that he had been summoned by Mr. Folk October 1, and in answer to questions had told all he knew of the Blair case.

It is expected that Mr. Webster will appear before the grandjury today, but he will then make the statements that he made to Mr. Folk when the investigation was begun.

Mr. Blair's condition has not yet become such as to make it advisable for his attorney, Judge Thomas H. Harvey, to discuss with him future steps to be taken in Mr. Blair's proposed application for a warrant charging criminal libel against Eugene C. Brokmeyer.

Judge Harvey states positively that the initiative in the matter will have to be taken by Mr. Blair and that a renewal of the application will be made only on Mr. Blair's express instructions.

Four witnesses appeared before the grandjury yesterday.

Those who answered to the summonses were Eugene C. Brokmeyer, against whom Mr. Blair sought the warrant for criminal libel; Alfred H. Spink, Dr. C. A. Peterson, manager of the Phil Detective Service Co., and Edward S. Robertson, an attorney, who was a co-trustee with Mr. Blair of the Blow estate.

Blair and Seddon
No Longer Partners.

The appointment of Judge James A. Seddon to succeed Mr. Blair temporarily as general counsel for the World's Fair, and the dissolution of the law partnership that had existed between Judge Seddon and Mr. Blair since January, 1902, both of which were told the Post-Dispatch of Wednesday, are regarded as natural developments in the case.

President Francis states that the appointment of Judge Seddon was made because of the familiarity that Judge Seddon, through his association with Mr. Blair, obtained with World's Fair litigation. The appointment holds good only until the close of directors of the World's Fair shall elect a permanent successor to Mr. Blair.

Judge Seddon says the dissolution of the partnership was at the suggestion of Mr. Blair, who expressed some weeks ago the belief that he should sever his connection with both the law firm and the World's Fair and begin a vigorous fight to disprove the rumors that were in circulation concerning him.

Judge Seddon says that Mr. Blair expressed the intention of beginning this action this morning.

JAMES L. BLAIR'S MAGNIFICENT SUMMER HOME
ON WHICH A HEAVY MORTGAGE HAS JUST BEEN RECORDEDFORTNIGHT BRINGS DRAMATIC EVENTS IN
JAS. L. BLAIR'S LIFE

Painful Personal Injury. Withdrawal From High World's Fair Office, Dissolution of Law Partnership and Placing of Incumbrance on Home Have Come in Quick Succession.

For ten days Fate has followed fast on the footsteps of James L. Blair, one of the best known men in St. Louis, formerly general counsel for the World's Fair, bringing to him a series of dramatic episodes such as seldom fall to the lot of a man of his prominence without bringing catastrophe.

Rumor has been busy with his name these many weeks. Today he stands stripped of his fine position, counsel to the World's Fair, his magnificent home mortgaged, his law partnership dissolved and his friends say, face to face with the necessity of vindicating himself.

The incidents of his life in little more than a week are of so striking a character that they of themselves could be made the framework of a novel dealing with the entanglements often found in the careers of able and ambitious men.

James L. Blair was an eviled man. His position in the business, legal and social spheres of St. Louis made of him a mark that shone high and bright for the shafts of the critical or the covetous.

With a distinguished family behind him, abilities that commanded the highest rewards, and a social position unquestionably the best, Mr. Blair's name was mentioned with every respect, in which are mingled admiration and not a little awe, by people of simple lives and aspirations.

The superb country home of the Blairs near Kirkwood, "Stancote," by name, has been the scene of many of the most unique and delightful social gatherings in St. Louis society. Visitors of eminence were entertained with a lavish hospitality that made the place a distinct and charming memory in many parts of the world. One of the functions that took place at "Stancote" during the summer, in which the guests wore children's clothes, became a matter of discussion all over the country, rivaling in this respect the doings of the smart set at Newport.

About two weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Blair announced that they would close "Stancote" for the winter and remove to the city, and many regrets were expressed that the lovely place would ever for a time, cease to be the scene of those gay gatherings that had made it so hospitable.

The regret was even more keen in Kirkwood, where Mr. Blair was one of the leaders in the life of the town. He was to have given a series of lectures throughout the winter and was to deliver the first, "Morals in Business Affairs," on the night of Monday, Oct. 13.

At beautiful "Stancote" Sunday, the day before that set for the lecture, several guests were spending the afternoon, among them George W. Taussig, Ashley Cabell and Judge Rhos Clarke.

The day before marked copies of a weekly publication had been received at the house, but they had not been brought to Mr. Blair's attention until a few minutes before the arrival of his guests. These articles contained insinuations of an unpleasant character, and Mr. Blair believed that they could refer to none but himself.

The attacks upon him had filled him with anger and the more he thought on them and the longer he alluded to them the more excited he grew. His friends tried to calm him, but the wound was too deep to be easily soothed.

"Stancote" was never lovelier than on that Sunday. Mr. Blair and his guests sat on the broad veranda in luxurious cushioned chairs, with a sweep of lawn before him, and tree and vine warmed into delicious bits of color against the violet autumn haze that veiled the woodland beyond.

Mr. Blair was always taken the keenest delight in his beautiful "Stancote," and always was the first to notice any little delinquencies of his gardeners, therefore when he noticed that a vine climbing up a tree on the lawn had been dragged loose, he essayed to put it in place. A long ladder stood against the tree, and while still excited over the article in discussion, he began to climb it, talking and gesticulating. He was now almost twenty feet from the ground, and, seeing the danger of his position, Mr. Taussig called to him to have a care or he might fall. Hardly had the warning been given when Mr. Blair slipped from the ladder and fell to the ground.

His friends ran to his assistance and carried him into the house, and a physician was summoned by telephone. He discovered that Mr. Blair had sustained a break of one of his ankles. During the night the pain and the mental excitement under which Mr. Blair was suffering increased to an alarming point, until at times he lapsed into unconsciousness, and was frequently delirious.

On the following day the announcement was made in Kirkwood that Mr. Blair was compelled to postpone his lecture on "Morals in Business Affairs" indefinitely, to the disappointment of his intended hearers.

Almost immediately Mr. Blair wrote letters to friends announcing his intention to prosecute for criminal libel the authors of the articles that had caused him so much distress.

So deeply had the articles affected him, that he had already written to President Francis and intimated that he would resign his position as counsel for the World's Fair. He had had a talk with his law partner, Judge James A. Seddon, during which he said that the rumors which had been pursuing him, assailing his character, would probably reflect upon the standing of the firm unless it was dissolved, and suggested that this be done.

Lying ill at home, Mr. Blair shifted at the position in which his affairs were. The more he thought of the insinuations in the articles he had read, the greater was his agitation and his desire to punish those who had inspired them. He wrote a letter to Circuit Attorney Joseph W. Folk, asking that the rumors be taken up by the grandjury.

So affairs ran along for a week. Mr. Blair decided himself to all except his nearest friends, but reports came from the sick room that he was suffering greatly. Monday afternoon, Oct. 19, he determined to act. He would make an effort to stop the publication of the articles to which he objected. He would strike a decisive blow that would silence rumors.

He arranged for the private car "Kinloch" of the Suburban railroad to be sent to

MOTHER AND BABES
STRUCK BY A CAR

Three Bodies Hurlled From Jefferson Avenue Tracks and Thrown to the Pavement.

DID MOTORMAN GIVE WAY?

He Says He Rang His Gong and Was Going Slowly, but Injured Woman Says No.

Mrs. Clara Parks and her two children, Stella, age 5 years and Helen, age 14 months, were struck by a south-bound Jefferson avenue car at Utah street Thursday morning shortly before 7 o'clock.

The baby was knucked from its mother's arms and thrown ten feet, between the north and south-bound tracks. Mrs. Parks was thrown to the east of the tracks. Stella was thrown so close to the rails that she front truck, in passing, but cut a lace collar that hung as a cape about her shoulders.

All three received bruises and cuts, but there are no present prospects of serious injuries to any.

Mother-love caused the injury to Mrs. Parks and the baby. She and the two children had alighted from a north-bound car and started to cross the south-bound track. Conductor Andrew J. Goodpastor, of the north-bound car called to her to look out for a south-bound car, and she stopped.

Stella, however, did not hear the call, and stepped upon the track. The mother, with the other child in her arms, sprang after Stella, and just as she caught her arm, the car struck them.

Stella received two ugly scalp wounds, and was bruised about the body. Helen has a wound in the forehead, and the right side of her face is badly bruised. Mrs. Parks, who says the car struck her from her ankle to her shoulder at the same instant, is suffering from bruises that cover her right side, and from pains in her arms.

Mrs. Parks says Leo M. Kersting, motorman of the south-bound car, did not ring his gong. Kersting says she is mistaken in this and that he was also going very slowly.

Mrs. Parks lives at 1721 South Second street and has a store at 2704 Iowa avenue, to which place she was going when the accident occurred.

FROST ERE ANOTHER DAWN

Frost-dazzling, nipping, cheerful frost that will draw pictures on the window panes and put crimps in plants that are not cared for—is promised for Thursday night. This is what the weather man says.

Fair and colder Thursday and Friday; brisk northwest winds, diminishing and becoming variable.

Thursday night, Frost probable.

After that, almost anything may happen. The wind currents have got themselves all twisted and are worrying the life out of every self-respecting weather vane in this section by their numerous changes.

The local weather bureau does not expect any rainfall for the present. There are no indications of rain anywhere in the country, so which way the wind blows, it isn't expected in bringing dampness along with it.

There is some cold weather up in the northwest—that which started from Canada Wednesday. It is this cold wave that is expected to bring the temperature for a frost Thursday night.

But the wind may change again, and the cold wave may be so twisted about that little it will get to St. Louis.

HER GREAT FORTUNE.

A Woman Saved From Life-Long Misery and Made Happy and Useful.

A woman confined to the house for several years with a chronic female derangement had finally given up hope of being cured.

She had tried physician after physician, and remedy after remedy, without any permanent improvement.

Her treatment had cost her husband, who was a poor man, hundreds of dollars. They had been obliged to deny themselves many comforts of life in order to get money enough to pay the physicians.

The woman had become weak, nervous and wretched, and scarcely able to keep out of her bed. Her children were growing up neglected and ragged, because of the want of a mother's care. Her husband was becoming discouraged and broken down with overwork.

Picking up the paper one day she happened to read an item which contained the news that Dr. Hartman would treat such cases free of charge by letter. She immediately wrote the doctor describing her case, and giving him all her symptoms.

She soon received a letter telling her exactly what to do, and what medicines and appliances to get. She began the treatment (the principal remedy being Peruna) at once, and in a few weeks she was well and strong again, able to do her own work.

This offer of free home treatment to women is still open to all who may need the services of this eminent physician. All letters applying for treatment will be promptly answered, and he held strictly confidential.

Miss Annie Hoban, Post-Dispatch, of Tennessee Council of Red Men (Women's Branch), writes from 572 Eighth Ave., New York:

"Three months ago I was troubled with backache and a troublesome heaviness about the stomach. I soon brought me no rest for it was a restless sleep. The doctor said my nervous system was out of order, but his prescriptions did not seem to relieve me. I was told that Peruna was good for building up the nervous system. After using it for two months I know now that it is. I want to say that it made a new woman of me. The terrible pain is gone, and I have all disappeared and I feel myself again. Peruna did me more good than all the other medicines I have taken."

MISS ANNIE POWELL, Lake Charles, Louisiana, writes:

"I sincerely believe that Peruna is woman's best friend, for it certainly has been that to me. I had headaches, backache and other troubles every month for a long time, but shortly after I began taking Peruna this was a thing of the past, and I have good reason to be grateful. I take a bottle every spring and fall now, and that keeps my health perfect, and I am certainly more robust now than I have been before and am weighing more. I do not think any one will be disappointed in the results obtained from the use of Peruna."

MISS ANNIE POWELL, Lake Charles, Louisiana, writes:

"I have never known of any patent medicine which did what it professed to do except Peruna. This remedy does much more than it claims, and while I have advocated any medicine I feel that out justice to speak a good word for it."

Secretary Woman's State Federation Says: "Pe-ru-na Does More Than is Claimed for it."

Mrs. Julia M. Brown, Secretary of the Woman's State Federation of California, writes from 1114 Fifth St., Los Angeles, Cal., as follows:

"I have never known of any patent medicine which did what it professed to do except Peruna. This remedy does much more than it claims, and while I have advocated any medicine I feel that out justice to speak a good word for it."

It because I have found it to be such a rare exception.

"I have known several women who were little better than physical wrecks, mothers who dragged out a miserable, painful existence, but were made well and strong through the use of Peruna. I have known of cases of chronic catarrh which were cured in a short time, when a dozen different remedies had been experimented with and without good results. I use it myself when I feel nervous and worn out, and I have always found the results were most satisfactory."

GAVE JOHN GATES $50,000 FOR A LITTLE STOCK BOOM

Mysterious Check, Payable to Lewis Nixon, "or Ourselves," Is Put in Evidence and There Is Much Speculation as to Its Purpose.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A package of checks, all drawn to the order of Lewis Nixon, has been put in evidence in the hearing of the proceedings to have a permanent receiver appointed for the United States Shipbuilding Co.

There were 17 checks in the bundle. They aggregated $5,777,063.87.

About $500,000 of this represented the cash payments made to the owners of the subsidiary concerns which sold out to the United States Shipbuilding Co.

Mr. Nixon indorsed these checks and handed them to the beneficiaries. All of the checks were drawn by the Trust Company of the Republic, Aug. 11 and Aug. 12, 1902.

There was one check peculiar from the others. It was made payable to "Lewis Nixon or ourselves." The words "or ourselves" are in fainter ink than the rest of the check. The amount of the check is for $250,000. This check does not bear the indorsement of Mr. Nixon. There is nothing stamped on the back, "Pay to the order of the Manhattan Trust Co."

Who got the $250,000 and for what purpose the check was drawn are mysteries. No questions concerning this particular check were put to Mr. Nixon on the stand. He was asked to identify the other 16 checks. The true history of this check may be solved later.

Good Things for Promoters.

Disclosure after disclosure of the peculiar workings of the ship building company, has shown that the promoters have made off in cash or securities, have been made.

It has been shown that, in addition to everything else that has heretofore been brought out, Charles M. Schwab got $500,000 in securities as "promotion profits." Of this he gave $50,000 in bonds to John W. Gates.

To Max Pam, Mr. Schwab's confidential advisor and attorney, it was shown, was voted in December last a salary of $18,000 a year as chairman of the executive board of the company, with the proviso that the salary was to be retroactive and begin from the 1st of the previous September.

Charles M. Schwab and Max Pam are now constant attendants at the hearing held in the office of Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the complainants. Mr. Schwab seems to be in fair health. He listens intently to the testimony, leaning forward when his name is mentioned. He sits behind his attorney, W. B. Dill, a famous authority on corporation law.

The witness said that neither he nor any of the men named in the prospectus of June 14, 1902, as directors were at the time actually directors, and some of them never did become directors.

Mr. Untermyer read from the prospectus the claims of the promoters that the year's profit on the work then under way in the shipyard would be $225,000 and that the combination would have a working capital of $5,000,000.

He disclaimed responsibility for the two statements, although he said that he believed them to be true at the time. He said it was his mistake that stock had been sold to the public on the strength of the first statement, but thought all the same that the combination would have been made. He said that, in the end, the combination only had $2,000,000 working capital, including the bonds in the treasury.

MANILA WANTS BUSINESS MAN.
Chamber of Commerce Suggests Successor to Gov. Taft.

MANILA, Oct. 22.—A committee appointed by the American Chamber of Commerce in this city, appeared before the Philippine committee and submitted a cablegram to President Roosevelt recommending the appointment of a business man of the United States as a member of the commission upon the retirement of Gov. Taft. The commissioners present, while they raised no objection to the cable being forwarded to the President, declined to express any opinion on its merits. There is a pronounced objection here to the proposal that the President appoint Beekman Winthrop, an assistant executive secretary, to the vacancy, and several heads of the department say they will resign if Winthrop gets the position. It is said that the commission favors Gen. Geo. W. Davis.

The news has just been received here that a band of ladrones surprised the town of Ifiga, in the province of Ambos Camarines, Luzon, and killed the wife and uncle of the president and three volunteers. Before retiring they captured nine men. One of the leaders of the ladrones was the president of the town, who was betrayed by the municipal secretary.

FATHER WINS FIGHT FOR MOSES CHASE

U. S. Court of Appeals Affirms Decision, Giving Him Custody of His Son's Wealth.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—By affirming a decision of the federal court for the Indiana district, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here has declared Frederick S. Chase of Lafayette, Ind., to be the legal guardian of the person and property of his son, Moses Fowler Chase, said to be worth nearly $1,000,000.

By this ruling of the superior court, George Hoadley, Jr., was loser, and the aunt of young Chase, Mrs. Ophelia Duhme, on whose petition Mr. Hoadley was appointed guardian of her nephew in Cincinnati, failed again to secure control of the young man and his valuable estate.

While an appeal to the United States Supreme Court is possible, this ruling is conceded to be practically the end of a legal battle which has been carried on for several years, for the guardianship of young Chase, who has been pronounced mentally unsound.

The decision dismissing Hoadley's petition for a writ of habeas corpus for young Chase affirms the order of the state court of Indiana appointing the boy's father custodian of the latter's person and property.

The plea of Hoadley, that only the appointment by the courts of Ohio was legal, while it has attracted unusual attention because of the large sum of money at stake, and the startling charges made by the contesting parties.

While it has been given to his aunt's care with his father's consent until he came of age, the charge was made that the continued detention of the young man by the aunt until last March was in pursuance of her plan to influence Chase to give over his property to her. On the other hand the Duhme's attorneys charged that the father was especially eager to prevent the son by depositing of his estate to others, the father would be sole heir to the valuable estate.

Young Chase is now in the custody of his father, Frederick S. Chase, of Lafayette, Ind. Chase is now about 25 years old. When about 6 years of age he was turned over to the custody of his aunt, Mrs. Ophelia Duhme, with consent of his father. The boy's father, however, was his legal guardian prior to his coming of age. Shortly before young Chase reached the age of 21 years he suffered a sunstroke which affected his mind, and he was sent to a sanatorium at Flat Rock, Mich. He had been adjudged insane, it is said for the purpose of getting him into the sanatorium, but when he was of age a Cincinnati court declared him of sound mind.

Three years ago Chase went with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Duhme, to Europe, and while there he suffered a relapse of his brain trouble and was confined in a Paris sanatorium. Last March, while the young man was still in Paris, his father is said to have schemed to obtain possession of his property, and while young Chase was abroad, the father was appointed guardian of his son's estate by the courts of Indiana County, Ind.

At the same time the young man was kidnapped from the sanatorium in Paris, taken to Cherbourg, and from there to New York. The court record alleges that the father, while holding his son prisoner by his father's agents, was taken from the ocean steamer by a tug in the New York harbor and removed secretly to La Fayette, Ind.

GOLDEN DOCUMENT FOR OLD SOLDIERS

Coin for Pensions Paid by Government Would Make Obelisk 106 Feet High.

But 1115 Widows, However, Are Being Supported by Uncle Sam Because of That War.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 22.—Commissioner Ware has computed that the outlay for pensions since the foundation of the government, if met in gold, would make an obelisk ten feet square and 106 feet high. This illustration perhaps gives an idea of what three billion dollars means; a billion ordinarily expresses something of which the human mind has little comprehension. It is an extraordinary fact that the total cost of the pension system from the foundation of the government to June 30, 1895, or until the civil war was itself over, a period of three-quarters of a century, amounted to but $48,000,000, or the present disbursement for eight months and nine days. This is an example of the magnitude of modern operations. Pensions for the Revolutionary war have cost up to date but $70,000,000, and as there are but five Revolutionary pensioners now on the roll, the chapter is nearly closed. This Revolutionary total represents about six months' expenditure today. The War of 1812, which has continued as an active charge until the present day, has cost but $45,000,000.

Its pensioners include one survivor of the war of 1812, and 1115 widows. Were the 1812 pensioners to have a reunion, poor Hiram Cronk of Onondaga county, New York would be the lone survivor of the revolution. He is now 101 years old. The last survivor of the revolution died in 1893, at the age of 109. It may be regarded as a general truth in the pension records that the widows of the war of 1812 are now nearly all dead. The last of the 1812 widows will be dropped from the list, just as the last participant is now nearing the end. By widow it should be generally understood in pension nomenclature all dependants—everybody who is dependent on the pensioner. For the war of 1812, however, practically all the dependants carried on the rolls are actually widows. The average age of participants of the war of 1812 is now 80 years. The question is constantly asked: How many survivors of the civil war remain unprovided for? The subject has been carefully investigated by Thomas D. Yeager, Commissioner of Pensions, and the result is as follows: The number of those who are drawing pensions is 703,646, leaving about 200,000 from whom further additions to the rolls may be drawn. Special tests have been made of the ratio of pensioners to survivors on a small scale, with about these results: Of the 54 soldiers employed in the pension bureau 40 are pensioners. It has been computed that 25 per cent of the number now on the roll would be added by a service pension act, exclusive of the few persons who would refuse to accept it. From this contingent which has not yet asked for a pension under the liberal laws already existing 14,000 are now coming in.

HE WILL ACCUSE A POLICEMAN.

Archbishop Hammerle Declares He Did Not Beat His Wife.

Archbishop Hammerle of 427 Warsaw avenue visited the Four Courts Thursday morning and announced that he would file charges with the board of police commissioners against a policeman named Werner of the Fifth district. Hammerle alleges that the policeman testified falsely in Judge Pollard's court Wednesday when he said Hammerle beat his wife. Hammerle and Werner are the men who fought in Hammerle's house Monday night, when Werner, called in by Mrs. Hammerle, tried to arrest Hammerle.

DOWNTOWN AMATEURS' STUDIO

Photographers of Missouri Meet to Elect Officers and Form Plans.

The amateur photographers of Missouri will hold their first meeting at Jefferson Club hall, Grand avenue and Pine street, Tuesday night, Nov. 3. The meeting will be for the purpose of electing the officers of the Missouri Camera Club and to discuss plans for the entertainment of amateur photographers who are expected to come to St. Louis during the World's Fair. The club expects to fit up a studio in the heart of the business district for the benefit of its members. The room will contain exchange albums, the current numbers of the leading photographic magazines, dark room and all the paraphernalia that go to make up a complete studio.

Dyke Meeting on 'Change.

A meeting to consider the building of dykes in East St. Louis has been called for Saturday afternoon at the Merchants Exchange, St. Louis, by W. E. Trautman, chairman of the East St. Louis citizens committee. Mr. Trautman intends to interest St. Louis people in the plan, which will be brought before the Illinois legislature at the next session.

NEW MERGER BANK POWER IN FINANCE

National Bank of Commerce of New York the Largest in the World.

CHIEF LINK IN BIG CHAIN

Its Assets Exceed the Public Debt of the United States by Fully $200,000,000.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Probably without exception the new National Bank of Commerce is the most powerful financial institution in the world. Of course, the Bank of England, Lloyds' Bank and the National City Bank of this city have large deposits.

But it is doubtful if there is any other bank with such an important board of directors. The deposits of the banks affiliated with the Bank of Commerce amount to $426,000,000, while the assets of all these great concerns are well over a billion dollars. The new bank is the chief link in a chain of trust companies and banks and insurance companies whose aggregate resources are the greatest in the world. At the directors' meeting will be assembled two of the United States' great financiers, F. D. Ives of New Jersey and Chauncey M. Depew, one of the presidents of the United States, Levi P. Morton, and Elihu Root, secretary of war. In addition there will be merchants such as John C. Dill, J. P. Morgan, Jacob H. Schiff and Thomas F. Ryan, railroad men, George J. Gould, H. M. McKim, Twombly and Daniel S. Lamont, street railway men, W. C. Whitney, Thomas P. Ryan, H. H. Vreeland, members of trusts, J. B. Duke and D. Guggenheim; insurance, John D. McCull, while lawyers and others not so prominent will be present.

Powerful Resources

From Its Affiliations.
J. P. Morgan alone of the directors is connected with institutions whose capitalization exceeds $4,000,000,000. The banks, trust companies and insurance companies which are closely affiliated with the Bank of Commerce make the assets of $1,306,102,833, which, with the assets of the Bank of Commerce, makes the assets $2,612,102,833. The affiliated concerns have a capital, surplus and undivided profits of $75,811,000, which, with the capital and surplus alone of the new bank, raises this item to more than $300,000,000. The combined deposits of the Bank of Commerce and 10 who are trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. The Morton Trust Co. has 14 of its directors on the board of the Bank of Commerce, and so through the list.

Power for Great Good and Great Harm.

The connections are so close in all these institutions that they may be considered almost as one great concern. Through its connection with the First National Bank, the Bank of Commerce is brought into close touch with the chain of banks connected with the First National, which are the Chase, Astor and Liberty National, and also the First National Bank of Chicago. Such a combination as this is capable of doing good and much harm. If it is run for the interests of the directors, or to enable some man or set of men to oppress their enemies, it will do much harm. The complete list of directors follows: J. P. Morgan, Fred Sturges, Charles Lanier, C. H. Russell, Alexander E. Orr, J. S. Kennedy, Woodbury Langdon, John C. Dill, Aug. D. Julliard, James N. Jarvie, Richard A. McCurdy, Fred Cromwell, William C. E. Root, Jacob H. Schiff, G. W. Young, Thomas H. Hubbard, George F. Baker, E. J. Berwind, H. C. Duval, James H. Hyde, George J. Gould, James H. Hyde, Braxton Lee, Luther Kountze, A. W. Mellon, Levi P. Morton, Thomas F. Ryan, H. H. Vreeland.

WHEN LITTLE BENNY

HE STOLE FOR A SUPERIOR

So Declared an Accused Cashier in Plea to the Court for Clemency.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—One of the most remarkable stories ever heard in General Sessions Court was told before Judge Warren W. Foster, when John A. Scott, former cashier of the London Assurance Co., was arraigned for sentence. Scott had pleaded guilty to the theft of $254.59, although the total amount of his defalcations, it is said, amounts to over $25,000. Lawyer Herbert S. Ogden, while pleading for mercy for his client, said he had stolen money for another person, a high officer of the London Assurance Co. The name of the official was not stated in open court.

"What is the evidence in this case?" asked Judge Foster. "It shows that there was an exchange of checks between them," said Mr. Ogden. "The cashier's salary was something like $750, during which time this official got about $500 from Scott." "I cannot extend extreme clemency in this case," said Judge Foster to young Scott. "If you are told that there was another man as much responsible for the theft as you are, this superior reason, if the facts are proved, should be dealt with according to law."

Ladies' Auxiliary Forming.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Typographical Union held its second meeting Wednesday in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Century building, and enrolled 50 new members. Steps were taken to immediately procure a charter from the national organization, and a committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws. Mrs. O. R. Lake, vice-president, presided, owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. M. Murphy. Meetings will be held twice a month at a permanent meeting place to be designated.

RUSSIA WILL SEE THAT WE GET PORTS

State Department Believes There Is No Ground for Fears of Chinese Treaty.

CZAR WANTS OUR FRIENDSHIP

It Was Through Him That China Agreed to Make Way for Our Trade.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—State department officials profess to feel no anxiety over the report that Russia will try to nullify the new commercial treaty between the United States and China by which two Manchurian ports are opened to American trade.

In the first place they do not believe the czar would resort to double dealing with the United States, when he needs all the friendship he can get and none more than that of this country.

But more than that, the United States owes the new Chinese treaty to Russia, and her fears of this country.

When Russia refused to evacuate Manchuria last April, as promised, Secretary Hay protested to Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, one of the wealthiest young men of the Hudson river valley.

Dr. Cleveland, father of the bridegroom, lives at Poughkeepsie and has retired from practice with a large fortune.

The young man has an aunt at Poughkeepsie, too, who is said to have a million. Part of this wealth will come day by day as the marriage certificate in her hand today when seen by a Post-Dispatch correspondent.

"Yes, they have taken him away," she sobbed, "and I suppose, as they are rich and an expert lawyer will do all in their power to annul the marriage. But I shall fight for my rights. I do not believe

RICH YOUTH, WHO MARRIED SERVANT GIRL, KEPT FROM BRIDE BY PARENTS

Young Manning Cleveland's Romance, That Began at a Back Fence, Likely to End in an Annulment Proceeding by His Angry Father.

Ring out, glad bells; your message tells, Through tremulous waves of air, That the hour is sweet, with a joy complete, For a dream divinely fair, Has opened the way to endless day, And love is monarch there.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—With these lines written on the back of her marriage certificate, Mrs. Manning Cleveland's joy was supreme until she heard today that her rich young husband is being detained by his wealthy relatives who may endeavor to annul the marriage.

Mrs. Cleveland was employed as a servant until she became the wife of young Manning Cleveland, one of the wealthiest young men of the Hudson river valley.

TIRED OF LUXURY, HE JOINS ARMY

Heir to $200,000, to Whom Spending Money Is No Pleasure, Becomes Private Soldier.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—Richard H. Garvin of Chicago, Yale graduate, brother of Virgil Garvin, the famous southpaw pitcher, and heir to a fortune estimated at over $200,000, arrived at the Columbus barracks today, a raw recruit, having enlisted at Philadelphia last Saturday.

Young Garvin is tired of spending money, he says and wants to lead a soldier's life for three years.

Garvin was a star pitcher at Yale and pitched for the team of the New York National League team, giving but one hit. He was offered $2,000 to sign a contract

SAYS MILLIONAIRE IS WEDDED TO HER

"Barge Queen" Makes Bigamy Charge Against Him, Alleging Illegality of Her Divorce.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Dorothy Agan Mason, "the barge queen," will seek to establish herself as the legal wife of Edmund T. Mason, a millionaire silk importer and merchant at a hearing tomorrow morning before Judge Mayo, where she has lodged a charge of bigamy against him.

If a judgment of "guilty" is found against Mason, his effect will be, despite the fact that he is now living with the second wife, he has married since Dorothy Agan Mason secured a divorce from him in Oklahoma 10 years ago, to restore her to all the legal rights of a lawful wife.

"When Edmund T. Mason pleaded the statute of limitations to save himself from the payment of $10,000 in alimony, for which my client was suing him," said Attorney Rosalind today, "she intended to drop the civil proceeding, to bring the charge of bigamy."

The divorce granted my client by an Oklahoma court is clearly without force in New York. It was not based on the statutory grounds, but for desertion. There was no service on Mason."

The contention of Mr. Rosalind is that Mr. Mason married Dorothy Agan in 1890 in Chicago. They went to Japan, where she learned Mason was neglecting her for other women and she came to live with him longer. She says he agreed to give her $10,000 and $50 a week alimony. All she got was $400.

Mr. Mason denies that he ever married the woman who is now suing him now, and answers to her suit for accrued alimony, he refers to her as "Dorothy Agan." He admits that in 1888 he had a divorce, but says this was done as consideration for her discontinuance of a suit for breach of promise.

EMBEZZLER KILLED HIMSELF

While Employers Were Waiting for Him to Make Good Small Shortage, He Shot Himself.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Charles S. Hanaw, 26 years old, shot himself in the right temple at his home yesterday afternoon and died two hours later in Harlem hospital. At the time of his suicidal act his employers were in an awkward position, the fulfillment of a promise to make good a defalcation.

Hanaw was employed as bookkeeper by Brand Bros., clothing store. He was taken ill during his absence, a discrepancy of $450 was found in his accounts.

Hanaw came to the office to report that he would return to work in a few days," said Mr. Brand today. "My brother and I argued him with appropriate force, but he said he had never taken any other money. We went to his house on his promise to turn over his bank book to us. Hanaw went into another room to get the book, we thought, when we heard a shot. Rushing in, we found him on the floor with a wound in his temple.

Hanaw was to marry a beautiful girl next January.

LOST IN MOUNTAINS SIX DAYS

Hunter Was Exhausted by Privations and Nearly Starved When He Finally Found His Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. QUINCY, N. Y., Oct. 22.—John Luxton returned to his home in Wanaque, near Carthage, today, after wandering through the Adirondacks forest, lost, ever since last Friday.

Early Friday morning, Luxton, in company with George Miller, went into the woods on a hunting trip, intending to remain for the day only, and taking with them a lunch. They soon became separated and Friday evening Miller returned home alone. It was believed that Luxton would find his way back Saturday, but he did not appear, and Sunday morning a party of 10 men began search, which continued without success Monday and Tuesday.

This morning Luxton limped in haggard and worn and nearly exhausted. His only sustenance had been the small lunch he took with him and two partridges which he shot. He was supplied with matches and kept fire burning for protection from the cold. His condition is serious.

WINE OF CARDUI

The real woman is the well woman. The sick woman is less than a real woman. Sickness is no more a duty nor a necessity for a woman than for a man. Miss Thomas shows how "the untold misery" of painful menstruation and bearing down pains can be avoided by taking Wine of Cardui.

Wine of Cardui has cured many thousands of women who were in the same condition as Miss Thomas. This pure vegetable Wine, taken in the privacy of the home regulates disordered menstruation, which is the cause of bearing down pains, ovarian pains, convulsions, nervousness and hysteria. Wine of Cardui provides for a healthy and painless operation of menstruation at the proper intervals. And this important function becomes a healthful benefit instead of a dreadful torture.

The health Miss Thomas today enjoys was given her by Wine of Cardui. It is your privilege to secure health by the same treatment.

All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

DAVID L. LAM, April 25, 1903.

Painful menstruation made life a burden for me for over three years. I suffered untold misery at every menstrual period, not simply bearing down pains, but cramps, gripings, colic, and at times convulsions, causing me to dread the time which I knew awaited me every month. In vain had I used a dozen remedies, and had but little faith in Wine of Cardui when my cousin advised me to take it.

You can little realize the joy which came over me as I gradually began to improve. Month by month the troubles were lessened. The scanty flow increased, and after four months' use of Wine of Cardui I was relieved from all pain and was perfectly well.

For the past nine months my periods have been regular to a day and with no pain attending them. This speaks for itself as to the value of Wine of Cardui, in my estimation.

DELANO SUCCEEDS HOWARD ELLIOTT

New President of Northern Pacific
Will Continue to Live in St.

Louis for the Present.

Howard Elliott, who, as was told in last week's edition of Wednesday's Post-Dispatch, has been chosen president of the Northern Pacific railroad, will continue to call himself a resident of St. Louis for several months. He left Wednesday evening for St. Paul, his official headquarters, but his family remains here.

president of the Chicago Burlington & Quincy railroad by F. A. Delano, formerly general manager of the road, who, in turn, is succeeded by C. M. Leavely, who has been general manager of the line in Missouri.

Charles S. Elliott's promotion to succeed Charles S. Mellen as president of the Northern Pacific was not a surprise in railroad circles, as it was known that the directors of the Northern Pacific were strongly impressed with his ability. He has been with the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy since 1902, and he began work as a rodman. He was elected second vice-president eighteen months ago.

JUDGE PLEADS FOR MAN HE HAD FINED

Appeals Successfully to Aged and Wealthy Witness to Pay the Indebtedness of Defendant.

SCATTER SUNSHINE. HE URGES

For the Sake of a Wife and Sick Children the Court Is Lenient to the Extreme.

The pleading of a judge for a man he had just fined and the payment of a $21 fine by a witness who had just testified in his behalf saved Theodore Hammerle of 3377 Warren avenue from serving a two months' term in the workhouse. Hammerle had been found guilty of disturbing the peace of his wife and resisting an officer. When Patrolman Anton Werner sought to arrest Hammerle on complaint of his wife, a fight ensued, in which both men were seriously battered and one of Werner's fingers were bitten.

The extenuating circumstances were that Hammerle's wife was partially responsible for the fight, and that she and the two children, one of whom was critically ill with typhoid fever, were dependent on the father's efforts for sustenance. Judge Pollard, in his lenient decision, said that he had imposed the lightest fine in his power, and that but for the fact that he had three persons dependent on him for support he would have given him the limit.

James M. Kane, 2015 Penrose street, an aged man who had testified that Hammerle was an honest and industrious painter and paperhanger, approached the judge.

"You have indeed tempered justice with mercy," he said to the court. "Now make it a matter of clemency alone," he added, "and for the sake of the man's family let him off on his good behavior by staying the fine."

"I have done the best I can for him," answered Judge Pollard. "To let him go free would be defeating the end of justice. But you are wealthy, Mr. Kane, and along in years. Scatter sunshine while you have an opportunity and erect a monument to your memory while yet alive by good deeds."

"Pay this man's fine and both clemency and justice will be satisfied," "Till do it, judge," was the hearty response, and the money was placed in the marshal's hands, while the husband and wife, now reconciled, walked from the courtroom, tears in the eyes of both, to essay life anew.

"RUN FROM FIGHT" SAYS COURT

Young Man Arrested While Looking on at Fistic Battle Which Terminates Seriously.

When one sees a fight in the street, instead of approaching the fighters, he should move in the opposite direction. This sounds like a transit company bit of advice, but is a ruling of Judge Pollard in the Dayton Street Police Court Thursday morning.

"A good run is better than a bad stand," said the court to John Leaskey, aged 19, of 1417 O'Fallon street, who was arrested for being present at a fight between Frank Buehl of 205 North Eighth street and William Goodell of 717 Carr street.

The two boys engaged in a fight on Twelfth street between O'Fallon and Bidle street. Leaskey heard the noise while he was home, and immediately ran out for the battle ground. During the struggle, which Leaskey was watching with much interest, two policemen appeared and arrested all present. In court this morning Leaskey pleaded that he had only been looking on and was told by the judge to run from the scene of fighting in the future.

Buehl was fined $5 for disturbance, and is in the City Hospital suffering from concussion of the brain.

BOY OFF FOR THE RANGE.

Scar on Temple Is Distinguishing Mark of Runaway.

Henry Dinkelkamp, 14 years old, living with his parents at 2424 Elliot avenue, has been missing from home since Oct. 10, and the lad's mother says she can assign no reason for her son's absence unless he has gone away to carry out a threat that he would leave home if there were not less quarreling in the family circle. He has had a scar on his temple since he was a small boy, and Mrs. Dinkelkamp believes that he may have gone to the Indian Territory, where his parents have friends, and where the lad himself once visited.

When Henry departed he had $4 in his pocket. This was his week's compensation for his work as driver for a tobacco concern.

ZIEGENHEIN OFFICE HOLDER SUMMONED

Federal Grand Jury Reaches Out in Its Naturalization Fraud Investigation—Besch Testifies.

GOVERNMENT WITNESS MISSING

Syrian Jefferson Club Man Believed to Have Fled, Though Leniency Was Assured for Him.

City Register Patrick J. Fitzgerald, Barney Taaffe, justice of the peace and former chairman of the Democratic city central committee; Henry Besch, ex-city register, who in the days of Ziegenheim was a recognized Republican boss, and Charles Robinson, a clerk in the auditor's office, were the principal witnesses examined in regard to naturalization frauds by the federal grand jury Thursday morning.

The summoning of Besch indicates that the grand jury is determined to go into the investigation of the Court of Criminal Correction naturalizations.

It has been claimed by Democrats that the federal grand jury is making a merely partisan investigation, but this is refuted by the declaration of the authorities that they intend to probe all naturalization abuses, irrespective of the party that may be responsible for them.

It is asserted that the Republicans, prior to the recent election, naturalized all aliens in the court of criminal correction.

Alleged intimidation of government witnesses is still a subject matter before the grand jury.

It appears that Joseph Bassee, one of the government's most important witnesses, has disappeared. Bassee is under indictment, but it was the intention of the government to treat with him.

Bassee was a member of the Syrian branch of the Jefferson Club. This organization, it is said, naturalized many foreigners in the city.

The fact that Bassee has run away has severely handicapped the government's efforts with respect to the inquiry into the affairs of the Syrian club.

After today's session the grand jury will adjourn until Tuesday of next week. Meanwhile Col. Dyer and his assistants will, it is said, draw up additional indictments.

CLEARWATER HAS A BIG LEAD

Challenger Wins Third Consecutive Contest From Eby, the Championship Title Holder.

Clearwater closed the third match with Eby for the pool championship 133 points to the good, and there is much confidence among the challenger's friends that the championship will be wrested from its present holder.

Clearwater's finish Wednesday night was brilliant. At one stage of the game the score was 60 to 6 in Eby's favor, but bad breaks by the champion and excellent playing by Clearwater brought the challenger in striking distance at the 100-point mark.

There are three remaining games of 150 points each, and Eby thinks he can yet win. The present score is: Clearwater 40, Eby 317.

CLUB MEN WANT FINE EXHIBIT.

Birmingham, Ala., Organization Has a $25,000 Fund in Readiness.

The Birmingham Commercial Club has asked the World's Fair officials for space to exhibit a statue of Vulcan, the legendary ironmaster, made from Alabama iron. The statue will stand forty-five feet high, weigh twenty tons and cost $10,000. It will be designed by one of the best artists of the country. Space will probably be given for the statue and other exhibits of the state mineral resources in the center of the Mines and Metallurgy building. The Commercial Club has raised $25,000 to make up for the lack of a state fund for an exhibit.

STABS PLAYMATE - WITH JACK-KNIFE

Fifteen-Year-Old Son of Cabanne Resident Appears in Police Court for Trial.

CITY PROSECUTES BOTH BOYS

Several Young Fishermen Battle With Mosquitoes, Then Turn on Each Other With Dirt.

Cirde Kunc, aged 17 years, son of Joseph A. Kunc of 5619 Maple avenue, is confined to his home suffering from a knife wound in his left leg, inflicted by Fred Haywood Patton, aged 15 years, son of Dr. S. W. Patton of 5617 Maple avenue, as the result of a war which the boys were waging on mosquitoes.

Thursday morning Patton appeared in the Dayton street police court to answer to a charge of disturbing the peace. As Kunc was unable to be present, his case and a cross case were continued until Oct. 30.

The trouble occurred Wednesday evening after the boys had returned from school. They had intended to go fishing and were out in the back yard, with several other lads, digging bait.

After they had been at work a short while, mosquitoes began to bother them, and the longer they labored the larger became the mosquito cloud. Finally the boys began throwing dirt into the insect swarms. They hit one another with this dirt.

Gradually, from throwing at mosquitoes, they began to throw at one another. All of the boys participated in the hostilities. Patton had been holding a pocket knife and an apple in one hand while he threw dirt with the other. In some manner, accidentally the boys say, this knife was thrust into Kunc's left leg near his hip. It penetrated about one and one-half inches of flesh.

Some of the other boys saw the blood and started for a policeman. They found one and took him to the scene of the dirt throwing. The officer heard the boys' stories and arrested Patton and Kunc, taking them to the Mounted District Station. Cross charges of disturbing the peace were preferred by the police, the boys not being willing to prosecute one another. Later, their parents furnished bail for them and they were released.

PUT INCURABLES TO DEATH, SAYS PASTOR

The Rev. Marle Wright Thinks Euthanasia Would Be Blessing to the Hopelessly Sick.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Rev. Marle St. C. Wright of the Lenox Avenue Presbyterian Church started the guests at the annual banquet of the New York State Medical Association last night by advocating euthanasia, or the putting of incurables to an easy death. Mr. Wright, a deacon of the church, said that it is not beyond the bounds of possibility.

"Of course, it is necessary to have the advice and approval of men of the highest scientific attainment. The city might be divided into districts, and every application should be considered most carefully, not merely by physicians, but by some eminent clergyman selected for the public."

"And, of course, there should be the consent of relatives and the consent, even request of the patient himself. But where all those conditions are fulfilled and where the prolongation of life is simply a torment to the patient, and where the patient is in such a condition that he is unable to take any part in his own life, and where it seems to me that a course would be a step forward in civilization and a step further away from barbarism."

TORN SHIRT IS HIS EVIDENCE

Victim of Street Car Conductor's Pugilistic Strength Secures Conviction.

A badly torn shirt was exhibited in the City Hall police court Thursday morning by Francis J. Hemm, Jr., of 310 Grand avenue, who testified that the shirt had been whole when he boarded a Shenandoah street car on Oct. 4 at Shenandoah street and Grand avenue.

He stated that Roy Hollowell of 6023 Minnesota street was the conductor of the car and that he saw the conductor. Hemm signed for the man to stop, but the car swept on and Hemm had to jump quickly to catch on.

Then he made his way to the motorman and demanded to know why he had not stopped the car. The conductor appeared and Hemm followed. Hemm received a blow on the head for which Hollowell was fined $5 and costs.

Deeper Channel for Commerce.

Dr. John Franklin Crowell, internal commerce expert for the Department of Commerce and Labor, will meet the Mississippi river improvement committee of the Merchants Exchange Thursday afternoon for the discussion of the probable increase of river commerce by the deepening of the Mississippi channel between St. Louis and Cairo.

Blind Girls' Benefit Lecture.

Albert Herman Zimmerman of Cumberland, Md., will deliver his lecture "In His Steps" at the second Baptist Church Thursday. Mr. Zimmerman will sing. The proceeds will be used toward the cost of paving the street in front of the Blind Girls' Home, 124 North Garrison avenue.

Thief-Fighter Is Robbed.

Jack Smith, a liverman and president of the Anti-Harriet Association at Fair Park, has reported the theft of $200 and some jewelry from his residence. The thief entered the house through the back door that had been left unlocked for the late entrance of one of the stable employees. Tuesday night.

Car Runs Along Sidewalk.

A south-bound Bellefontaine car jumped the track Wednesday night at Eleventh and Howard streets, and ran its front end along the sidewalk. Charles Carver, a passenger, was thrown from his seat to the door and bruised.

MYSTERIOUS CASE OF GEO. GOERLICH

Young Man of Good Position and Close Home Association Is Strangely Missing.

George Goerlich.

Mrs. Pauline Goerlich of 136 Armstrong avenue has requested the police to assist her in finding her son, George, who disappeared from home last Monday evening and of whom nothing has since been heard.

The young man went away shortly after supper, stating that he was going out for a walk, and that is the last that has been seen of him by either relatives or friends.

Brothers of the missing man have visited the hospitals daily and have made inquiries regarding him in all parts of the city, but their efforts have been unavailing. They are of the opinion that he did not leave the city and fear that he may have met with foul play.

George is 23 years old and a very slender young man, being six feet two inches in height, and weighing but 150 pounds. He is blond and at the time of his disappearance wore a suit of black clothes with a black fedora hat and black shoes.

Members of his family say that he was a home-loving young man, and that most of his evenings were spent at home. He was employed in a wholesale grocery house and was well satisfied with his position. He had never expressed any desire to leave St. Louis or to make any change in his business life. His health was of the best.

He had comparatively small acquaintance in the city, the rest of his close home associations, and none of the young men with whom he was on friendly terms have been able to throw any light on his disappearance.

CAPITAL STOCK INCREASED.

United States Trust Co. Will Enlarge Its Business.

At a meeting of the United States Trust Co. it was decided to increase the capital stock of the company from $500,000 to $1,000,000, and at the same time to increase the surplus account from $300,000 to $600,000, the additional $300,000 to be sold from time to time at a price not less than $100 per share.

Members of the company were represented, either in person or by proxy, and the motion to increase was carried without dissenting vote.

Action on a proposition to increase the number of directors from 11 to 15 was deferred until Nov. 15.

W. J. Atkinson was requested by the company to remain with the company as president.

TESTIFIES AGAINST CHILDREN.

Mrs. A. Rothschild of 3125 South Grand avenue testified against her own children in the Wyoming street Police Court Thursday morning, thereby securing the dismissal of Contractor Albert Joer of 1273 Connecticut avenue, who was charged with having failed to place red lights on building material which he left in the habit of putting the lights out after the contractor's employees had lighted them.

The court dismissed Joer but warned Mrs. Rothschild that she must see to it that her children did not offend further, or they would be called to answer for it.

GREAT WAS FALL OF LITTLE HOUSE

Tiny Prison Encases Workman in Tumble to Bottom of Rock Quarry.

John Nadler, a prisoner in a 12x12 house near the top of a traveling crane used in the stoneyards at Twentieth and Gratiot streets, fell thirty-five feet to the ground when the tracks of the crane collapsed Wednesday evening and was only bruised.

The crane is an enormous machine, with a reach of about one block, and is used in carrying stone from the yard to the crusher. It is operated by steam and travels along an iron track supported by timbers. The engineer controls its movements from a little house set on top of the crane and traveling with it.

The crane, with Nadler in the engineer's box, picked up a box containing 3000 pounds of pebbles and started with it to the crusher. When half way to its destination the tracks collapsed and machine, house, stone and all, went plunging toward the ground. The little house became loosened, and tumbled over and over in its descent. Nadler taking a similar number of revolutions. It managed to hit the ground clear of the broken parts of the machine, however. He was shattered into kindling wood by the force of the fall.

Max Beechenstein, foreman of the yard, ran with several workmen to the wreck of the house. They expected to find Nadler's lifeless body.

He surprised them by rising to his feet and beginning to shake and feel himself. "I don't believe I'm broke up any," he said, "but I am bruised all over."

None of Nadler's bones was broken, and he did not even receive a sprain. His bruises, however, were numerous, and when he tried to walk he had to give it up. He was taken to the City Hospital.

Nadler says he had noticed that the track was weak and had asked that it be repaired, but that it was not done. In spite of the danger he continued to do his daily work in the little box at the top of the crane.

Nadler is 41 years old and lives with his wife and two children at 1812 1/2 Benton street.

GIRL'S PLEA AIDS BROTHERS

Child Singer Informs Judge That Two Youths Arrested on Cass Avenue Are Good Boys.

The pleading of little Kitty O'Brien in the Dayton street police court Thursday morning saved her two brothers, Tom and Frank, from paying fines for disturbing the peace.

Kitty is a very pretty girl and well known as a singer. She has appeared in public many times, but her role Thursday was a new one to her. Her brother Frank had been arrested for loitering about the corner of Twenty-fourth street and Cass avenue, and Tom had been arrested for loitering at the policeman who captured his brother.

The cases came up Thursday morning and Kitty took advantage of her position as a witness to inform the court that her brothers were both "good boys."

She said Tom had a good position and that Frank had worked steadily until about two months ago, and was now trying to secure another position. She argued so enthusiastically that the court finally dismissed Tom without fining him and assessed a fine of $5 against Frank, this being later reduced to $2 entry of costs.

Maplewood Files Complaint.

County Court to Investigate Sewage Conditions There.

The St. Louis County Court will visit Maplewood Thursday to investigate sewage conditions.

Maplewood residents have complained of the alleged emptying of sewage from two pipes into a culvert under the Missouri Pacific railroad. A number of families living along the Manchester road state that their property is being damaged by inadequate sewage for surface water.

The Maplewood Improvement Association asks the court to direct that the sewage be taken through pipes some distance farther to a sink hole.

PRIEST IS ORDERED TO GIVE UP CHURCH

Father Mazzotas of East St. Louis Loses His Fight in Court With Bishop Janssen.

By virtue of a decision of Justice E. Wangelin of Belleville, rendered Thursday morning, Father Joseph Mazzotas must surrender possession of the Lithuanian Church property at East St. Louis to Bishop John Janssen.

The justice decided the bishop's suit of ejectment against the priest in the bishop's favor. Mazzotas' attorneys, however, filed a bond of $300 and took an appeal to the circuit court, thereby assuring the priest possession of the property until Jan. 11, the first day of the next term of that court.

July 1, 1903, Bishop Janssen removed Father Mazzotas and ordered him to surrender the church property, which the bishop claimed in fee simple. The priest declined to give up either his charge or the property. The case was fought out in the ecclesiastical courts, finally reaching the papal delegate, Cardinal Satolli, at Washington, who decided in favor of the bishop.

Father Mazzotas was again ordered to vacate both the pulpit and property and he again refused to do so. Vicar-General Cluse of East St. Louis made several attempts to oust him, but was unsuccessful. Finally on Oct. 5, the aid of the civil courts was invoked and a writ of ejectment was served. The case came up before Justice Wangelin at Belleville and his decision was in favor of the bishop.

LINEMAN CANNOT SURVIVE HIS FALL

Plunging Thirty Feet Through the Air, He Crashes Through Porch, and Debris Buries Him.

Through the breaking of a telegraph pole at the corner of Second and Ash streets in Venice, W. J. Thompson, a lineman of Fourteenth and Clinton streets, St. Louis, fell 30 feet Wednesday, crashed through the front porch of the Niemann residence and was buried under a pile of debris from which it required considerable work to remove him. His injuries will prove fatal.

Thompson had been working on the pole stringing wires. While he was out on one of the cross-trees, the pole broke 20 feet below him, close to the ground.

It fell toward the sidewalk, the lineman's weight being on that side, swinging far enough in to catch the Niemann porch. Crashing through the porch, the pole fell on top of Thompson and pinning him to the ground. The wrecked porch also fell on the hapless man.

Other linemen cleared away the wreckage. They found Thompson in an unconscious condition, the telegraph pole across his chest. He was taken in an ambulance to a physician's office, where it was found that both of his arms and his left leg were broken and that he had sustained fatal internal injuries. He was then removed to his home in St. Louis.

Motorman Fatally Shot.

Harry Hays, a motorman from St. Louis, who was shot while driving the street car strike, is not expected to survive. His home is Bridgeport, Conn. One week ago he went to Waco.

THE POST-DISPATCH DAILY STORY.

Liz'beth.

Full of Pathos is this Little Story of Simplicity. For Years the Old Man had been Poor, but in his Heart was the Love and Romance of Youth. Once a lover, Always a Lover is the Theme of the Little Tale.

BY JULIA TRUITT BISHOP.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)
 "An' you're sure you've got a lot of money, Jim?" asked the old man eagerly.
 The old man was propped up in an old rocking chair, with which he had made long and painful acquaintance. The prodigal sat beside him, holding one of his knotted and wrinkled hands. The prodigal's eyes were wet.
 "A lot of money, father—more'n you'd ever guess," said the prodigal.
 "As much as a hundred, maybe?" ventured the old man, timidly. He felt sure Jim would laugh at him for having such an extravagant dream as that.
 "What'd you say to as much as a thousand?" said the prodigal with a lump in his throat.
 In the next room a woman was singing as she swept the floor. They could hear the thin voice and catch the words, once in awhile. "How firm a foundation, ye saints—"

"O, a thousand!" You never mean that you've brought home that much," said the old man. His face was twitching. "Maybe you've made that much since you've been gone—but you couldn't have brought it home!"
 "More'n ten thousand, father," cried Jim, laying his face down on the arm of the chair and trying to keep back the dry sobs that shook his form. "I reckon you an' mother won't have such a hard row to hoe any more. I'll get you anything you want right now. What do you want, father? I'm goin' to take you up to the city, an' see if you can't get cured up there, where they've got doctors that's some account. An' anything else, father—a new horse—a fine buggy—you see if I don't try to make up to you for all these years—"

The old man grasped his son's hands and leaned over in an eager whisper into the ears of the prodigal:
 "I don't want a thing, Jimmie—not a thing on earth—not for myself. Tain't likely I could be cured anyhow, an' if I could it ain't much worth while—not for the little while I've got to go. But, Jimmie—they're somethin'—I'm afraid to mention it—I reckon you'd think it was too costly—an' maybe you'd say there wasn't any need of it, after all these years—"

"What is it, father? A new room to the house? A porch out in front? I was thinkin' of that last night, when I come in. It would be nice to have a porch there, with vines over it, where you could have your chair pulled out in the evenin'—"

"But it ain't that, Jimmie," cried the old man, with both hands clinging appealingly to the lapels of his son's coat. "It ain't that. You see—oh, it's no use—you wouldn't think of it. If only I could 'a' done it myself when I was younger—but now it's too late—"

"But, father, I will!" cried the prodigal, with more earnestness than he had brought to many speeches in his life. "No matter what it is, I will have that money's worth for you an' mother—just to make you comfortable for the rest of your lives. I'm changed, father. You may not think it, but it was a girl—away out west—the sweetest girl—an' I was goin' to bring her home—an' she died—and made me promise—an' so, it's all for you—"

You've been in love?" cried the old man, softly. "Then you'll know what it is—you'll understand. You see—she always wanted it when she was young—and she was so pretty then—an' we used to talk about what we'd buy when I got rich, an' I always told her she should have that, if there wasn't another rag bought in the house. But we never got rich, Jimmie—an' she's gone with poor clothes all her life—an' now, if I could only see her with that—"

"What is it, father? Do tell me!" coaxed Jimmie, without looking up.
 "It's a black silk velvet dress, Jimmie—the old man turned pale and spoke in a broken whisper—"A black silk velvet dress with fine lace in the neck. She always wanted it—an' she'd ought to 'a' had it—she was one o' that kind. It's been called all her life—a girl called—an' hard work—and a day at a protracted meetin' now an' then has been about her only pleasure. Once I had such different thoughts about how things was goin' to be. It's pretty hard, Jimmie, to see the woman you love growin' old with pethin' but a b're, hard life—milkin' an' churnin' an' cookin' an' sewin'—when a little money'd make such a difference!"
 "It's been my fault," groaned Jimmie. "If I'd 'a' stayed at home an' helped take care of you both things wouldn't 'a' been so bad."
 "Yes, but maybe she wouldn't 'a' got the silk velvet dress now," said the old man, anxiously. "Tain't likely you'd 'a' made that much money by now on the farm—"

THE MAN IN THE STREET

Obeying the Doctor.

The emaciated, consumptive-looking passenger nestled back in a corner of the rear platform, and regarded critically a long, slender package he held in his hand. Then he looked wistfully at the big, strong man beside him who was smoking their cigars with an air of enjoyment. They returned the gaze with some curiosity, mingled with pity, for the man appeared to be far gone. "Perhaps we had better throw away our cigars," whispered one to his neighbor, nodding significantly toward the emaciated man. The emaciated man sensed what was going on and smiled. "Don't stop smoking on my account," he remarked. "The fact is, I want to smoke myself, and if you gentlemen will give me a little room, I will." Wonderingly they moved aside. Carefully unrolling the long package, the man disclosed a fearful and wonderful cigar. It was fully twelve inches long and surprisingly thick.

He lighted it calmly and puffed with manifest pleasure, enjoying also the evident astonishment of his companions. They demanded an explanation.
 "I am obeying the doctor's orders," he said.
 "What! Did any doctor recommend a cigar like that? Gimme his name!" The smokers spoke as one man.
 "Well, not exactly that," said the man. "But he said I was smoking too much, and ordered me to cut down my allowance to three cigars a day. Now, he did not specify the size of the cigar, so I had these specially made. I am supposed to smoke one clear after each meal, and one of these lasts from breakfast to luncheon, another from luncheon to dinner, and the third until bedtime. But, though I conscientiously obey the doctor's instructions, I note no improvement in my condition. I am now of the opinion that he didn't know what he was talking about, for it is evident that it was not an excessive use of tobacco that brought me to this state."

All agreed with him.
 Lacking ravens to feed him in New York, it looks as though Elijah III would be compelled to eat crow.

Looking Under The Hat.

You seldom find a brainy man with a round head. The head that contains a lot of brains either is very long from front to back or else irregular. You can learn something of a man's mental ability by the hat he wears. If his head is so bumpy that it seems as if he never could get a hat to fit him he probably is a genius or a crack-a-jack in some particular line. If his head is long from front to back, he is a clear thinker and smart as a whip. So if your hat costs more money than your friend's hat does, and you are harder to fit, be consoled by considering that your brain is worth more.

An Accommodating Conductor.

It is evident that much of the criticism bestowed upon street car conductors for a lack of willingness to oblige is unwarranted. The Suburban has at least one who will do almost anything his passengers require of him. Yesterday a fine instance of his obliging spirit was afforded. At Jefferson avenue a big, husky passenger got on the car, paid his fare and demanded a transfer on Broadway. The accommodating conductor looked puzzled for an instant, perhaps wondering if the Suburban had acquired a Broadway franchise since his last trip. Then his face brightened. If there was such an emergency (and since the passenger asked for a transfer it must exist), he was prepared to meet it. He took from his pocket a few old crumpled transfer slips, wrote "Broadway" on one of them, and handed it to the passenger, who placed it in his pocket with the air of a man who is not to be trifled with.

Now it was not the fault of the accommodating conductor that when the transfer was presented to a servant of the transit company on the Broadway line there should be an immediate mixup. The Broadway conductor refused to honor the pass, and the passenger insisted that he would ride on it. Consequently they went to the street together. As the passenger was the bigger man he would probably have ridden on the transfer had the police not intervened. Explained to the passenger how matters stood, and the passenger then demanded an explanation of the Suburban road. The evening appeared depressed when seen in the light of the transfer. He said that no matter how obliging a conductor is, the public does not appreciate it.

A Condensed Novel.

BY EDWIN J. WEBSTER.

"My publishers have been urging me to condense my stories, not to go so much into the details of the plot, but to give the rest to the reader," said the struggling young author. "And now," he added, in tones of placid triumph—"now I have written sometimes which I know will appeal to them. It is in three chapters."

CHAPTER I.

"Ha!" exclaimed the villain, in tones of exultant villainy.
 CHAPTER II.
 "Ho!" thundered the hero, in tones of heroic bravery.

CHAPTER III.

"Hee, hee!" chuckled the lonely heroine, in dulcet tones, in which were combined admiration for the brave hero and horror of the villain and his villainy.
 "In these few words," continued the struggling young author, exultantly, "are condensed crime, virtue and love; the intermingled pathos and tragedy of three lives. There is no burden of detail nor lack of suggestiveness. I don't see how my great work can fail to lead the six best selling books of the year!"

Cutting Out the Last Word.

A man in a smart gray suit and a soft gray hat was driving a big red motor car along Grand avenue the other afternoon when a woman on the rear seat of the tonneau leaned forward and said something to him. He pretended not to hear, and she stood up to repeat it in his ear. He reached down and pulled a lever that made the machinery roar and caused the car to buck so violently that the woman had to drop back into her seat for safety.
 Then the man shut off the roaring and bucking, and a satisfied grin settled on his face. As a new thing in the way of a gag for femininity it was a decided success.

SAVED HIS MOTHER FROM BALD EAGLE

Youth, After Desperate Fight With Attacking Bird, Shot It to Death.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Anthony Schwane, the 15-year-old son of A. W. Schwane, who lives at 244 North Forty-first avenue, is accounted a hero among the residents of Irving Park as the result of his successful battle with a large bald eagle which attacked his mother late yesterday afternoon, while she was returning from the city to her home in Irving Park.

The fight was a fierce one and was only ended when the bird fired into the winged assailant a charge of heavy shot from a double-barreled gun.
 About 5 o'clock Mrs. Schwane was walking along North Forty-first avenue toward her home. She noticed a large bird circling above her, but did not anticipate an attack from it. When she was a few doors from her home the bird, which had drawn nearer to her in a flight of narrowing circles, suddenly swooped down upon her, making vicious efforts to fasten its talons in her clothing.

Mrs. Schwane screamed and raised her umbrella to protect herself against the bird. The eagle became more infuriated at the defense offered by the woman and in an instant it pounced upon the umbrella, dragged it from Mrs. Schwane's hands and tore it to fragments with its beak and talons.

Deprived of this means of defending herself, Mrs. Schwane sought refuge in flight. Rushing up the steps, she staggered across the threshold and fell fainting on the door of the hall.

Mrs. Schwane's son, young Anthony, had observed the eagle's attack on his mother and, seeing his father's shotgun, he rushed to the defense. The proximity of the bird made a shot exceedingly dangerous to the safety of his mother and he endeavored to drive the bird away by using the gun.

The new antagonist engaged the attention of the eagle and at this juncture Mrs. Schwane made her escape by flight. The battle the son waged was growing fiercer and the eagle was becoming more and more infuriated. The bird retired from one of these blows. The bird retired from one of these blows. The bird retired from one of these blows.

This was the opportunity Anthony was looking for. He leveled the gun at the eagle and fired. The shot was well directed and the eagle fell mortally wounded.

PAYNE IS CLEANING HOUSE

Removes Four Postal Employees From Office as a Result of the Bristow Report.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Postmaster-General Payne has removed from office Michael W. Louis, superintendent of supplies at the postoffice department; Louis Kempner, chief of the registry division; the third assistant postmaster general's office, and C. G. Terry, a $300 clerk in the postoffice department, and directed the postmaster at New York to remove Otto Weiss a clerk.

These removals are the first result of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow's report on the irregularities in the postoffice department.

Weiss, the New York clerk who has been relieved, is said to have enjoyed confidential relations with George W. Beavers, late superintendent of the salary and allowance division, and he is charged with having acted as a medium through whom other clerks in the New York postoffice were communicated with. Terry is from Indiana. He was temporary clerk in the office of the postmaster general and was removed. He made charges that he had been discharged from his position by John M. Maeten, then chief clerk of the first assistant postmaster general, but now assistant superintendent of the railway mail service, because he had refused to give money to Maeten for his retention and the President directed his reinstatement. It is understood that the investigation failed to substantiate Terry's charges and his permanent removal is the result of that failure.

Planning to Outwit Scampers.
 Passenger officials of several of the railroads entering St. Louis from Eastern and Southern cities took advantage of the winter schedule meeting, now in session here, to discuss protection from ticket scalpers during the World's Fair. While the officials of the railroads were in session, it is announced that some very acceptable plans were canvassed.

Mrs. Tesson Not Lost.
 Mrs. Amanda Tesson has returned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lou Carmack, at 115 South Eleventh street, and denies any intention of causing her daughter uneasiness. Mrs. Tesson spent the night with the Carmacks and on the way home stopped to visit in the city. Mrs. Carmack knew that her mother had been away and was not at all alarmed. Mrs. Tesson had been away for some time and had reported her absence at the Carmacks.

WOMAN IN BOSS' ROLE IN HAWAII

Princess Theresa Wilcox's Power, However, Is on the Wane Just Now.

HONOLULU, Oct. 22.—The power of Hawaii's political boss is waning along Princess Theresa Wilcox failed to carry the home rule convention. For Hawaii's political boss is a woman and also a princess of the royal blood. That is, she says she is a princess, and no one who has felt the sting of her tongue dares to say her nay.
 The Princess Theresa is the most prominent person before the Hawaiian public today. When Queen Liliuokalani ruled the islands Mrs. Wilcox did not count for much in the political life of the country. It was after the American form of government was instituted that she came into power.

Mrs. Wilcox wanted the power and brought Wilcox into the race for Congress. She also organized a home-rule woman's club. It elected her husband as delegate, and for two years the princess enjoyed the distinction of being the social leader of the islands. Mrs. Wilcox, who was not in Washington, boasted the home-rule party in the islands.

When Wilcox returned a few months ago, having finished his term in Congress, he was ill and reported to be dying. She took up the reins of party control and kept things going in the committee until Wilcox was able to be out, and presided at meetings of the executive committee. One man who had the temerity to object was read out of the party.

The Princess started a newspaper for the purpose of electing a good clean ticket to start off the country's government. She told her constituents just what she wanted, and then they turned her down. The Princess left the convention hall in a huff. Her husband is in custody now for deserting the home-rule party, all excepting her husband, and a few other friends and relatives on the ticket.

BABY SURVIVES HIS INJURIES

Little John Schleif Loses an Arm Under a Street Car, but Fights Bravely for Life.

John Schleif, 3 years old, who was run over by a car in front of his home at 1407 Sarah street, was in an improved condition Thursday.

The child left his mother in the rear of his home Wednesday afternoon and had been gone about two minutes when the accident occurred.
 The left arm was cut off below the elbow, but medical attention was secured before a fatal loss of blood.

The child is in a serious condition, but seems happy, that a new car, instead of an old one, ran over him.

MARVELOUS JOE GRIM CANNOT FEEL FITZ'S PUNCH

GRIM SWINGS WILD.

GANS LOOKED WORRIED PART OF THE TIME.

Philadelphia's Newest Hero of the Ring
Stands Firm In the Face of Terrible
Punishment From the Best of Fighters and at the Last
Gong Is Crying for More.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—The latest marvel of the ring today is Joe Grim, who a few weeks ago was a bootblack and who is now constituting himself an animate devil on which the fists of opposing fighters vainly beat.

Grim worked his way into the graces of the fight followers here, not by his fighting but by his powers of resistance—father, of endurance.

Grim, weighs but 133 pounds. He has faced Bob Fitzsimmons, who weighed 180 pounds, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, the man who has reduced more opponents than any other fighter in Philadelphia, and other slugs of repute.

Only a few nights ago Joe Gans, the cleverest and hardest hitting welterweight for Joe is no longer a light-weight—met Grim, and though the colored champion beat a tattoo on every part of Grim's body, the Italian smiled, grimly, as the boxer suggested, but smiled.

Gans did everything to Grim but use an ax on him. He tried for six rounds to put his opponent out. He hammered Grim to the floor time and again and none of the punches, hooks, uppercuts and every other form of sleep-producer known to pugilism on the steel frame of his opponent, but though Grim went down, he always got up without taking a minute's rest.

Gans was exhausted by his own efforts, while Grim, at the end of six rounds, was looking for more.

Joe Gans and Jim Jeffries and all the rest look alike to him. Grim will meet any fighter in the world and stay six rounds. He is a little man, but he is a fighter.

As an active fighter Grim never gives in. He is a little man, but he is a fighter. He is a little man, but he is a fighter.

There is a story about Grim that illustrates the toughness of his body. A few weeks ago, while Grim was training, a visitor at his quarters said that Bob Fitzsimmons' solar plexus punch would soon "do up" the Italian. Grim went away, and in a few minutes returned with a heavy hickory pickaxe handle. He passed it to the visitor, then holding his arms above his head invited the Italian stranger to swing the club and hit him across the stomach. The Italian complied with a will. Grim was knocked to the floor, but jumped up laughing.

After the fight with Fitzsimmons the doctor visited Grim in the dressing room, expecting to find the Italian suffering from the terrible punches delivered by Fitz. Grim was standing erect, taking a sponge bath.

"Haven't a sore spot on me, except my nose," he said, and to prove his statement he hammered his own fist vigorously against the stomach and sides that Fitz had just been battering.

Grim is a hard man to hurt. Half an hour after the fight was riding down Broad street in an open barouche, preceded by a brass band, and followed by a chorus of Philadelphia. He was smiling and happy.

DILLION TRIES TO REGAIN PEDESTAL

Billings' Great Trotting Mare Will Be Sent Against Her Own 2:00 Time at Memphis.

LCU DILLON GOES AFTER THE CRESCUS RECORD.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 22.—Lou Dillon, denied a match with Crescius for a $5000 purse, will go against her own record of 2:00 at the Memphis track Friday afternoon if weather conditions remain favorable. The form shown by the little mare in her races with Major Delmar convince her admirers that she can at least equal the Crescius record of 1:59.

George Ketcham, owner of Crescius, telegraphs that it will be impossible for him to bring his champion to the Memphis meeting on account of previous engagements.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 22.—Dan Patch, the mighty pacer, will go against his record this afternoon. It is hoped that he will do something to offset the poor showing made here by other champions.

Billings and Smathers, owners of Lou Dillon and Major Delmar, respectively, had another steep yesterday, and as in the former case, Billings won. Billings drove The Monk against Smathers' Ida Highwood, winning in straight heats. Smathers said before the race that his mare was going out of her class, but he hoped to make good. He came near doing so in the first heat, but she was out of her class.

This made the mare's victory for the second heat, but she died badly in the stretch. The time in both heats was ordinary, the first being trotted in 2:31 and the second in 2:07.

Popey won the $1000 purse in the 2:12 trot in straight heats from The Questor. Hal Chaffin captured the Sunny South stake, 2:15 pace, with $2000 added, by taking the two last heats, Star Hal winning the first, 2:28.4, and the second, 2:26.4. The Parson, heavily backed by the Michigan contingent, took the 2:19 trot, purse $1000, in straight heats from Allen, time 2:12.5, 2:12.5.

CRESCUS TROTTED ONE MILE AND TWO FEET.

WICHITA, Kas., Oct. 22.—The fact that Crescius trotted a mile and 24 feet at the track here, and that he made the distance in 1 minute and 59 seconds, have been verified by the affidavits of a civil engineer and the official timers.

There was report that the track was short. Ransom H. Brown, a civil engineer, was employed to measure it. He found it 5284 feet, or 24 feet in excess of a mile, around the inside rail, and has made affidavit to the effect.

A. C. Jordan, M. T. Dames and Fred Stearns, official timers of Crescius' performance, were with him. It was getting old, and not see them run. He adds that his trainer, John Higgins, is getting old.

Unless Champion Jim Jeffries succeeds in getting on a night when he reaches New York it is said that he will take a trip to Philadelphia in a recent interview the champion said:

"There are no men for me to fight in America except Harrison, and I don't like

MISS CRAWFORD IS LOGICAL WINNER

Fast Two-Year-Old Should Defeat Excelsior, Atlas and Others in Today's Handicap.

BY R. D. WALSH.

FAIR GROUNDS RACE TRACK, Oct. 22.—With an average of only eight horses to each race today the sport at the Fair Grounds should be more formful and there should be less difficulty in selecting the right ones. With the exception of the fourth all the races are of the selling-plate variety and consequently there is an absence of class to them. As usual, the fourth will be the feature event of the day. It is a handicap at six furlongs for 2-year-olds and upward.

The handicapper has given the place of honor to Elastic, but it is doubtful if he is entitled to that position by reason of his recent races, which have been anything but brilliant. But Mr. Maginn has a long memory. The big horse showed a lot of speed a few days ago, and he is asked to carry today. If Elastic were at his best form there is hardly a doubt that he could handily vanquish this field, but his recent efforts have been of such a character as to preclude the possibility of his winning here.

Mocorito will make her first appearance of the season in St. Louis. California has been her stamping ground, and she was raced there last winter with moderate success. She is a fairly good mare but her present condition is unknown outside her stable. Fit and ready she is liable to be troublesome in any company here at this distance.

Hazel's last race was such a bad one that he cannot be selected to win the race, but it must be said in his favor that he got one of the worst rides seen on any of the local tracks this year.

The two-year-olds are very strongly represented here by Miss Crawford, Atlas and Excelsior. This is an excellent trio in my judgment the race lies between these three.

Miss Crawford is a high-class filly that may be depended on to give a good account of herself. She is a good runner and day with 7 pounds more, but it was exclusively against horses of her own age. She also will be asked to go against older horses and at a furlong farther. She has already shown that she can go the route, and it is reasonably certain that she can cover it in 1:14 or better. This will win. Excelsior has a great pull in the weights, and with her well-known speed, she is a contender. She has won at over a mile, so there is no question of her ability to travel the distance.

Atlas is another good 2-year-old that is lightly treated in the matter of weight. She also has proved that she can go the route, but she hardly classes with Miss Crawford. I think she will about show. Santa Ventura's last race was so dull that she cannot be considered dangerous today.

Nine 2-year-olds will open the day's sport with a race at five furlongs. It is a very open affair, and the winner should be as good as 3 to 1. Our Little has probably the best record of the lot and on mere figures should win. Hoofbeat has not run her best race yet and has a splendid chance here. Since she came to the Fair Grounds she has been very unlucky, but fortune may favor her today. Lady Pons has about the best chance of the others to show.

The largest field of the day will meet in weights 1 must go to quiet here. At the weights 1 must go to quiet here. At the weights 1 must go to quiet here.

JONES GOES SOUTH WITH BROWNS

Mercer Says First-Base Man Will Be in St. Louis and Not in Brooklyn in 1904.

First-Base Man Jones, over whom so much of a quarrel is being waged by the St. Louis Browns and Ned Hamilton of Brooklyn, will go south with the Browns next year, when the team goes to Corsicana, Tex., on its spring training trip, according to Sidney Mercer of the Browns.

"The discussion over Jones appears to be altogether futile," said Mercer today. "Jones was drafted by St. Louis from Ned Hamilton's Eastern League Baltimore team. Hamilton, realizing that Jones is one of the most valuable men in the minors and has the making of a probable star, doesn't want to let Jones go, and states that the drafting of Jones by the Browns will not hold, inasmuch as he himself had signed Jones for next year.

Hamilton, however, did not sign him for Brooklyn, but for Baltimore, which still leaves Jones subject to our draft. Had Hamilton signed him under a Brooklyn contract and then shipped him to Baltimore after the season was under way next year, we should have been unable to get the Jones for next year.

Failure to get First-Base Man Jones would leave McAleer in a bad hole for his 1904 club, as Anderson has been let go and good first basemen are scarce.

With the return of the Smith fullback to the New York baseball club, and unless the great pitcher demands as much by his name as he has, the club will be in a bad hole for his 1904 club, as Anderson has been let go and good first basemen are scarce.

With the return of the Smith fullback to the New York baseball club, and unless the great pitcher demands as much by his name as he has, the club will be in a bad hole for his 1904 club, as Anderson has been let go and good first basemen are scarce.

COLOR LINE IN MILITARY CAMP

Friction Between Texas Regiment and Negro Regulars at Fort Riley.

PORT RILEY, Kan., Oct. 22.—Some friction has developed between the members of the Texas regiment and the troops of the Tenth cavalry at Fort Riley, who are colored men. Some of the Texas men have forbidden the troops to pass through their camp on any pretext and the colored soldiers, who comprise one of the best cavalry regiments in the army, are displeased at the order. Numerous fist fights have already taken place, and last night a detachment of the troops of the Tenth cavalry camped at the Texas regiment's camp, and carried off one man who, however, was released in a short time. Men of the Texas regiment have said it is necessary to travel in bunches whenever they visit the commissary store near their camp.

This evening Col. Wagner will deliver a lecture on "Strategy."

DECLARED DEAD THOUGH IN COURT

Silas Hulin, Judge Says, Was "Murdered," Notwithstanding His Protest That He's Alive.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 22.—For a third time, Silas Hulin, the supposed victim of a murder, was "resurrected" and he appeared alive and well in the courtroom last night as the chief witness in the habeas corpus proceedings brought to have Clarence Peak, who is under a sentence of 18 years for the murder of Hulin, liberated.

The court, however, dismissed the petition, holding in effect that Silas Hulin is dead to all intents and purposes, and that the court had no legal right to interfere with the conviction and judgment which had been properly secured. An appeal was wayed to the supreme court.

Two years ago, Peak killed a man, who was identified as Hulin. He was tried and sentenced. In the meantime, Hulin appeared, but the supreme court disregarded his presence and affirmed the sentence on its merits as tried below.

INDEPENDENCE OR ANNEXATION, THE CRY IN CANADA

Decision in the Alaskan Boundary Case Is Sorely Trying the Loyalty of the Citizens of the Dominion Government.

ENGLISHMEN THE LEADERS IN AMERICAN MOVEMENT

Belief Is Growing That the Great Territory Will Not Realize Its Greatest Possibilities Until It Becomes Part of the United States.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 22.—There is much talk of annexation and of Canada becoming independent, business men being generally much dissatisfied at what the British term disregard of Canadian interests to please the United States.

It is a matter of comment that the loudest among the discontented are Englishmen residing here. Many of these say Canada will never achieve her greatest possibilities until she becomes part of the United States.

Rev. Elliott S. Rowe, the leading Methodist minister of British Columbia, and who, with Chief Justice Hunter, constituted the labor commission, which sat this summer, in an interview, said:

"I am a Britisher and I have always been a Britisher, but if Great Britain is to hand Canada over peacefully to the United States, I say let us join the American republic also."

"We are large enough, populous enough and important enough to have something to say regarding the terms of such annexation, and also would be potent enough to have something to say in the affairs of the republic of which we would form a part. But if we wait until our best and richest territory is given away we shall simply be absorbed."

"It looks to me as if Canada had won the case and lost the territory."

Mayor Neelands of Vancouver thinks that the Alaska award may lead to the establishment of Canada as an independent nation.

Prof. Shonate, the political economist of Queen's University, when asked to express his views upon the Alaskan boundary question, said:

"About three years ago I was asked to write an article on the Alaskan boundary question. I agreed to do so, and, having access to the more important documents and correspondence on the English, Russian and United States claims, both before and after the treaty of 1825, I applied to these as the necessary preparation for my article."

"The result of my study was to convince me that the Russian claims, which were transferred to the United States, were so strongly supported by the documents that it was impossible to make out a valid case for the Canadian contention on the more important points at issue."

Not wishing to do anything that would prejudice the Canadian case, I was forced to withdraw my promise."

Premier Laurier has received the following cablegram from Minister Sifton of the interior department, who prepared the Canadian case in connection with the Alaskan boundary:

Official Statement of the Award.
"LONDON, Oct. 20.—Laurier, Ottawa—Award signed by Chief Justice and Commissioners Root, Lodge and Turner being under treaty binding majority. The line commences at Cape Skutumpah, goes directly to the northern entrance of the channel between Wales and Sitikan Island, proceeding northward between said islands to Portland channel, thence along the middle of Portland channel varying from 10 to 30 miles, speaking generally, when opposite Thomas Bay, stops, undisturbed from there to a point about 13 miles north of the head of Taku river, thence follows the peaks of White and Chilcot ranges, thence by peaks of mountains to Mount Fairweather, passes close to the police post situated near Klehini river. On this course the line will be from eight to 20 miles north of the provisional boundary line from Fairweather, a short distance northward and then on a fairly direct course to the rear of Yakutat Bay, thence from peak to peak by somewhat circuitous route to Mt. St. Elias. Marked map follows tomorrow."

"THE CRIMINAL INDIFFERENCE OF BRITISH STATESMANSHIP."
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 22.—Feeling is very strong here over the Alaskan boundary award against Canada. The Free Press says:

"The Alaska boundary award will take its place with the Ashburton treaty as a damning evidence of Great Britain's subservience to the United States where the latter's interests conflict with those of Canada."

"Canadians will never become reconciled to the sight on the map of Maine piercing our territory like a wedge—our own land, so greatly needed to unite the two eastern sections of the Dominion, of which we were deprived through the criminal indifference of British statesmanship."

"Similar feelings will, we fear, be entertained by all future generations of Canadians when they see on the map the long arm of American territory running down the Pacific shore and barring our rich hinterland from access to the sea."

NEW AIRSHIP FOR THE FAIR CONTEST

McAnulty's Machine Looks Like the Paddle of Stern-Wheel River Steamer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—N. A. McAnulty has entered the field for the $100,000 prize for a flying machine at the World's Fair in that city, with one which differs materially from those heretofore planned.

The apparatus is not unlike the paddle-wheel of a stern-wheel river steamer, with the framework built of gas pipe and the paddles of canvas, the whole mounted on an iron shaft and hitched to a steam engine. The framework is of a hexagonal shape, intended for six paddles, but only three have been attached.

The two upright standards which support the shaft rest on levers constructed on the fulcrum principle. The outer ends of these levers are wired to an ordinary spring scale, the object of which is to register the lifting power of the wheel in motion.

The paddles describe a circle about fourteen feet in diameter and go at the rate of thirty revolutions a minute when the little engine is running its best. The paddles are turned by means of sprocket chains, so that on the downward sweep they lie in a horizontal position and return to a vertical position on the upward sweep. The wheel weighs about 70 pounds.

The limited speed with which the engine can turn the wheel prevents the inventor from demonstrating that it will lift its own weight. At present the scale shows a weight of 160 pounds lifted, and McAnulty figures that at sixty revolutions a minute the wheel will overcome its own weight, enable it to raise an engine and car. For its final experiment the inventor proposes to build his machine with four wheels constructed of aluminum, each having six paddles.

This machine will weigh about 250 pounds including a forty-horsepower gasoline engine and will exert a lifting force, he says, of 750 pounds, enabling it to sail in the air with the greatest of ease.

ST. LOUIS BOY GOOD WITNESS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
TROY, Mo., Oct. 22.—Kenneth Maxwell, 11 years old, of St. Louis, is the strongest witness the defense has produced in the case of the State against Clarence Barnes, who is charged with killing Rhodney Clay, at Mexico.

Young Maxwell testifies, positively, that Clay fired the first shot. His testimony is corroborated by Mrs. John Sullivan, of Chicago, who, as Margaret Fitzpatrick, was employed by Maxwell's parents. Kenneth and Miss Fitzpatrick were at a market, near the postoffice when the tragedy occurred.

The boy was too hysterical to testify at the preliminary hearing, but he had nerve enough to stand up to the ordeal so well this time, not even a skillful cross-examination could confuse him.

Kenneth lives with his parents at the West End hotel in St. Louis. His father is a member of the firm of Maxwell & Kenneth, mule dealers.
